Steal the Bacon

BLM
5A

Divide students into two equal teams and assign corresponding numbers to members of both teams. An extra student can be the caller if the class has an uneven number of students. If the number of students is even, then the teacher can be the caller.

Have the teams face one another about 20 feet apart. Place an item that is easy to carry, such as a chalkboard eraser, between the two teams as the bacon. An X in the diagram shows where to place the bacon.

| | | |
|----|---|----|
| 1 | | 10 |

| 5 | X | 6 |
| 6 | | 5 |
| 7 | | 4 |
| 8 | | 3 |
| 9 | | 2 |
| 10 | | 1 |

The caller randomly calls a number and the two students with that number run to the middle to steal the bacon. The student who did not pick up the bacon tries to tag the runner who got the bacon before that runner can return to his own side.

Continue the game as above, but do not call a repeated number until all students have had at least one turn to play.

Before the game begins, consider the number of students involved and determine the number of points a team must earn to win, or play the game just for fun with no winner. Teams earn one point for every student tagged and one point each time the bacon is successfully captured for the team.
